San Giorgio Martire

Category: Catholic Church

business description: The church stands on the edge of the small Garadassi district, facing east. The gabled façade features a split tympanum. The central entrance to the church consists of a splayed portal with a lunette, above which is a quadrangular window with a segmental arch, decorated with stained glass and surmounted by a projecting tympanum. The bell tower is integrated into the structure, immediately behind the church façade, on its right side. Entirely plastered, it has a quadrangular base with a cella open to single-lancet windows on each side. Extensively decorated with projecting elements framing each side both horizontally and vertically, with paired pilasters, it culminates in a small onion dome on a high octagonal drum. The nave has a double-pitched roof, a triple-pitched roof above each transept arm, a double-pitched roof above the presbytery, and a multi-pitched roof above the abyss. The roof is made of concrete tiles. The church has a Latin cross plan with a single nave, punctuated by pilasters in four bays. The roof is round-vaulted with ribs and lunette windows above each bay. The transept arms, which are extremely small, house two minor altars and are covered by a barrel vault. The presbytery, raised above the nave level, culminates in a semicircular apse with a dome-shaped roof. The floor of the nave is made of hexagonal concrete tiles arranged in a vaguely floral pattern, where the flower has a red pistil and black corolla on a white background.
